Hit song written in Upper Highlands

"You Belong to Me"

*See the pyramids along the Nile
Watch the sun rise on a tropic isle
Just remember, darling,
all the while, You belong to me.*

By Bob Kotheimer

Musician and songwriter Chilton Searcy Price died in January after living in the Upper Highlands.

Last October, the Kentucky Arts Council awarded the Governor's Award in the Arts to Price for her lifetime achievement as a songwriter.

She played violin in the Louisville Orchestra in the 1930s and 40s and penned some hit songs in the 50s. While working at WAVE TV as music librarian, she met Pee Wee King, who hosted a television show.

King and fiddler Redd Stewart helped Chilton with publishing and exposure in the music business and credit for writing some of her songs was shared with them.

Pee Wee King had perhaps his biggest hit with Chilton's "Slow Poke." She also wrote "Never Look Back," which was sung by Doris Day in the film, "Love Me or Leave Me."

Chilton did most of her songwriting while living at 2815 White-way Ave. and penned her most famous song, "You Belong to Me," while living there.

The song became a number one hit for Jo Stafford in 1952, and a number of other musicians have recorded the song, including Dean Martin, The Duprees, Bob Dylan and Tori Amos.

Check out YouTube for Lawrence Welk playing "Slow Poke." And look for Jason Wade singing "You Belong to Me" for the film "Shrek."

Plan to attend annual meeting

September 15 • 7 p.m. • Assumption High School cafeteria

Come hear the news about what is happening in your neighborhood.

See interesting displays about the history of our Upper Highlands neighborhood.

Find out who will be honored with this year's neighborhood award.

There will also be important votes on amending the bylaws of the neighborhood association and electing officers. The amendments are posted on our website at www.neighborhoodlink.com/louisville/uh.

Plan to attend and become actively involved in your neighborhood association.

History of Upper Highlands

The history of the Upper Highlands display that first appeared at the Festival in the Upper Highlands was such a hit, there will be an encore presentation.

Attend our annual meeting on Sept. 15 (7 pm at Assumption High School cafeteria) to view this very interesting historical display.

Thanks to Upper Highlands residents Bob Koth-eimer and Irma Raque for their contributions.

Are you being a good neighbor?

Vehicles must be parked on a solid surface and it is against the law to park them anywhere in your yard.

Be a good neighbor and pick up after your pet. Your neighbors should not have to pick up after your four-legged family member.

Walking tours offered

A series of free waterfront walking tours, led by local historian Rick Bell, will explore the history of Louisville's riverfront and the development of today's Waterfront Park.

The 90-minute tours will begin at the Belle of Louisville's landing at the Fourth Street wharf.

Areas to be discussed include the riverfront's importance to the growth of Louisville, from its founding during the American Revolution through its glory days during the Steamboat Era, to its renaissance as one of the world's most successful maritime recreational parks.

Participants should wear comfortable shoes and bring drinking water and sunscreen. No registration required.

Tour Dates:

Saturday, September 25, 10 – 11:30 a.m.

Sunday, September 26, 2 – 3:30 p.m.

Upper Highlands t-shirts

We had a great festival in June and now you can show your neighborhood pride all year by wearing an Upper Highlands Neighborhood Association t-shirt.

The shirts are white and have the UHNA logo in purple. They are made of 100 percent pre-shrunk cotton.

Sound barrier update

The timeline for beginning construction work on a sound barrier along the north side of the Watterson Expressway adjoining the Upper Highlands has changed.

Design work was delayed due to unforeseen problems.

December is now the target for completing the design process and a construction contract is expected to be awarded next spring.

The Upper Highlands Neighborhood Association will continue to monitor this project and keep residents informed in the Communicator.

Police report

• Always be aware of people in the neighborhood who do not belong. They may be planning a burglary or vandalism.

There also have been several reports of residents leaving vehicle doors unlocked and garage doors open. Please secure them.

• Several hundred people attended the August "National Night Out" event at the Fifth Division Police headquarters. This encourages residents and police to work together to prevent crime.

- Remember to be safe and watch your speed in school zones.
- In mid August, the Gar-diner Lane Shopping Center was hit with the latest crime trend – theft of copper from air conditioning units. Staples and Borders were both targeted. This is as perfect example where citizens can help by keeping their eyes open for unusual activity and reporting it.
