We are pleased to announce that our city has a new website:
www.SpringValleyKY.org.

The mayor and city commissioners will use the site to communicate important city news, notifications, and other information to residents.

City residents can use the site to add a short bit of information about yourselves. To do so, use the "Add Yourself" link under "Our Neighbors."

City residents can also start discussion topics. This feature is not intended as a way to make requests to the city commission; if you have an issue for the commission, please contact Mayor Pat Long. To keep the site content current, the site administrator may delete a discussion topic when no updates are occurring.

The city commission will manage all content on the web site.

The city map can be expanded to look at individual streets and homes. To do so, select "Map" under "Our Info" on the home page. Then use the navigation buttons and move-in/move-out slider. You can select either a satellite or hybrid view of the map image.

The city selected a very inexpensive website implementation, and the updates are performed by city commissioners. The cost per household is less than 50 cents per year.

To protect privacy, information about residents (such as the city directory) will not be entered on the website.

We ask that you please not use the site for advertising purposes.

Dave Field, a city commissioner, is the website administrator.
