Councilmen Kevin O'Neill and Dan Fowler invite you to join an important discussion.

A house is not just a building. It is a home—a place that shelters, protects and nurtures its occupants. It supports their personal and professional development and offers a safe harbor.

Affordable housing is not a handout. It is a necessity. For years, the middle class has been squeezed as the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. At the same time, the cost to rent or purchase housing has become less affordable for millions of Americans.

Greater tax generation, creation of jobs, opportunities for economic development, increased job retention and productivity, and the ability to address inequality — all are among the economic benefits of increased access to quality, affordable housing.

With the immense growth of the Northland, we want to ensure that there are opportunities for all.

Please join us as we research and discuss the need for affordable housing in the Northland.
