What resignation? There is none. There is also no litigation or lawsuit. Don't know where you get those ideas. The letter from the Attorney just stated that the President or the Board members cannot remove another member of the Board. No resignation and no removal means I am a member of the Board and as such I have the same rights to receive all correspondence as any other member of the Board.

Kathy,

Thank you for your past service. Your resignation was accepted and confirmed by the Legacy Cove Board several weeks ago last month. We have moved onto implementing a smooth and hassle-free transition.

As a result of the correspondence sent to us recently, your former status as a Director is now a legal matter. I respectfully ask that you refrain from tampering with the Legacy Cove bank accounts until the litigation process can adequately run its course. Please turn over all account information and financial records immediately until a judgment on this matter can be reached.

Since this issue is now in litigation, all correspondence on the matter should be administered within the construct of the legal process.

Regards,

Davon Ebert
